Orleans and Genesee County Soil & Water Conservation Districts are working with a grant from NYS Dep't. of Ag & Markets to help create a Farmer-led and run soil health organization. The feeling of local farmers is that it is necessary to share local information on successful practices that lead to improving the health of our farm soils in Western New York. Farmers trying out various practices, such as interseeding cover crops into growing crops, and sharing the results with their peers will result in finding the best practices that work locally with our Western New York weather, seasons and conditions.
